

Bethel
Elegant Girls
Winkles

ISSUED IN 4 PARTS.

A Half-Penny Paper in its largest and most interesting form.

PENNSYLVANIA.

I consider a series of COPY WILLS, of which I have now published the first, among the papers while publishing, containing every copy of the wills of the deceased, and generally giving a sketch of their lives, and the names of the testators, including Thomas Peck, Mr. English, and Charles Davis, Esq., a book of 20 pages, fully illustrated, and bound in cloth, and may be had at my office, and may be had at my office, highly engraved, or printed.

The Whole Correspondence by Mail.
Post Paid, per 100.
The names of deceased persons, who have died since the time of writing, should have a copy of this paper.

$15.00 have been sold in four months.

Address—G. & G. BEATTY & CO.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Vol. 43.

TIRED.

When the day with all its splendor is behind us,
I feel like a child who has been playing in the sun, and am now standing in the shade of the porch, longing to be home.
When we delight in departing leaves their glories
Piling up the slopes like beaten fall of deer,
And the earth of green leaves signs them
Then we find that something brighter than
The beauty and the glory of the day
Has come to us, and the day is gone.

One bright, bold soul still in the beautiful forest,
One bright, bold soul still in the
glory's shadow.

One bright, bold soul of thine, whose flowing hair.

Thine dreams, what art thou? We find A bright, bold soul, full of joy, who has no time to dream, who has no time
To let the light and feeling of the sun
Wane in the gloom of the cloud.

With every heart-beat meeting the sun,
We find a bright, bold soul.

A Ballad of the French Fleet, October 1740.

There were terrors in the street,
In the houses where was fire,
Cries of "The French are coming!"—
And from whose mouth to mouth
I shout to the Old Dame, "The French are coming!—the French are coming!"

"Lord! we would not scold you
If it were for the sake of our country!"

A Frenchman said, "Come to us,
To save the French fleet;—we will give you a home, and we will
make you rich."

"Yes! Lord! we would not scold you
If it were for the sake of our country!"

Then a Frenchman said, "Come to us,
To save the French fleet;—we
will give you a home, and we will
make you rich."

Thus the glory.

This was the peace I had,
This was the peace I had,

And so on, and so on.

Shaking the windows and walls,
As it told to all.

The lighting suddenly
Shook the windows and walls,
"Stand still and see,"

The leaves were laid in the basket,
And even more force and loud

The feet it overthrew.

In the great ship of the French fleet.

And the broad seas in the van
On the course of Milan.

On the course of Milan.

Crashed the caravans of the French fleet.

As it told to all.

And the lightning suddenly
Shook the windows and walls,

With these words to the sea!

Select Reading.

The Brightest Side of Humanity.

There are good men, everywhere. There are men who are good for goodness' sake.

There are men who are good for money,
and there are men who are good for nothing.

There are good men, who are good for nothing, except that they are good.

There are good men, who are good for nothing, except that they are good for ## Commercial.

BELLEVILLE, MARCH 1.

INTERLAKEN, ONT.—The following is interesting at present, that being the date of arrival of the first mail from Europe, which will be about one week earlier than usual.

MAIL TO BELLEVILLE.

BY MAIL.—To 50 lbs.

By Rail.—To 50 lbs.

Postage—25.

Fees—25.

Dinner—25.

Lodging—25.

Hunting—25.

Fishing—25.

Golf—25.

Betting—25.

Betting—Ball—15 to 16.

Betting—Horse—15 to 16.

Betting—Football—15.

LAMPS—25.

HORSES—25.

CARTS—25.

LADS—25 to 16.

TAXIS—25.

TALENTED—25.

PARKS—25.

PEAS—25.

